

2nd Announcement of the 10th

International Working Conference on Stored Product
Protection

Estoril

is a coastal town 27 kilometres west of Lisbon. It is a cosmopolitan suburb of the Portuguese capital and belongs to one of the richest municipalities in Portugal, Cascais.

One of the most beautiful parts of the Estoril Coast is the countryside - a succession of hills dotted with pine trees and houses, sweeping down to the sea. Apart from the usual country side scenery, the visitor will also enjoy seeing the local villages with their typical houses and the old palatial villas along the sea front and the following historic places: Castro Guimarães Museum and Sea Museum, the 18th century churches of Nossa Senhora da Assunção and Nossa Senhora dos Navegantes; the chapels of Nossa Senhora da Guia (15th century) and São Sebastião (16th 17th-centuries) and the 17th century fortress. Just a few minutes away lies Guincho beach (a great place for those who enjoy surfing and windsurfing)

10th

International Working Conference on Stored Product Protection (IWCSPP)

The 10th IWCSPP brings together scientists, consultants, extension workers and industry, involved in the safe storage of the world's durable food commodities such as grains, legumes, spices, dried fruits, herbs and animal feed; and non food products such as museum artefacts and wood.

From June 27 to July 2, 2010, Portugal will have the honour and pleasure to host the 10th IWCSPP. The conference will be held in Estoril just outside of Lisbon. The conference is organized under the auspices of Tropical Research Institute of Portugal (IICT) and by the High Institute of Agronomy (ISA)/Technical University of Lisbon.

The objectives of the conference are:

To exchange information from a wide range of agricultural and economic scenarios, ranging from small farms to large commercial bulk storage, from the tropical to temperate climates.

To present innovative solutions to storage problems that are effective, inexpensive and environmental friendly.

Invitation to Companies to Exposition Salon to Sponsor the 10th IWCSPP

10th IWCSPP is the most influential international conference in stored-product protection. It is held only once every four years, it brings together scientists, consultants, extension workers and industry, involved in the safe storage of the world's durable food commodities such as grains, legumes, spices, dried fruits, herbs and animal feed; and non food products such as museum artefacts, tobacco and wood.

The conference objectives are to exchange information from widely differing agricultural and economic scenarios, ranging from small farms to large commercial bulk storage, from tropical to temperate climates, and to present innovative solutions to storage problems that are most appropriate, cost effective and least damaging to the environment and consumers.

Invitation to Companies to Exposition Salon

Advantages of participating:

1. Reach more than 500 delegates from over 63 countries.
2. Exhibitors are listed in the program, proceedings and website.
3. Proceedings reach libraries, institutions and individuals around the world.
4. Enhance your image on the international stage.
5. Extended exposure period, website opens summer 2009, four-day conference.
6. Increase customer contact and business opportunities.
7. Launch new products.
8. Give clients hands-on experience at your booth during conference.
9. Entertain customers at a great destination.
